 - (b) at least one tiedown that meets the requirements of subsection 2 (1) for each 3.04 linear metres of lading or fraction thereof, and as many additional tiedowns that meet the requirements of subsection 2 (1) as are necessary to secure each part of the load, either by direct contact between the load and the tiedown or by contact between the load and dunnage; or
 - (c) any other means that prevents a load from shifting or falling that is similar to and at least as effective as the means specified in clause (a) or (b).

- (3) The strength of anchor points must be at least as strong as the tiedown when the connector is loaded in any direction in which the tiedown may load it.
- (4) A tiedown shall not be used if,
- (a) the active portion has knots in it;

- (6) Except in the case of steel, fibre or synthetic strapping that is permanently crimped, tiedowns used on a commercial motor vehicle to secure the load against movement in any direction must be designed, constructed and maintained in such a manner that the driver of the vehicle can tighten the tiedown in transit.
